

UNITECH INDUSTRIES HEALTH AND SAFETY POLICY STATEMENT

Unitech Industries regards the promotion of Health and Safety measures to be the mutual objective of Management and employees at all levels. Its Safety Policy is to do all that is reasonable practicable to protect its employees from personal injury, to prevent damage to property, to protect visitors and the general public from foreseeable risk insofar as they have reason to come into contact with this Company or its processes.

Unitech Industries is aware of its responsibilities under the Health and safety at Work Act 1974 and will make every effort to:

Comply with all current and future Health & Safety legislation applicable to its business activities.

Obtain expert advice as necessary to assess the Health and Safety risks arising from its work activities' and determine the relevant precautions to be taken to ensure its performance in a safe manner.

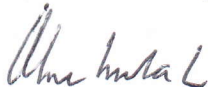

Make available safety training and instruction to employees in respect of risks to their Health and safety, which may arise out of their workplace.

Provide all necessary protective equipment and supervise its use.

Annually review the effectiveness of the Health & Safety policies and set objectives for continuing safety improvement within the organisation.

All employees have a legal duty to co-operate with Management in meeting company Health and safety objectives. All employees and sub-contractors engaged to undertake work activities on the behalf of the Unitech Group of companies have the right to refuse to perform a work activity, if they believe their own or others safety will be compromised by its performance, without the fear of any subsequent disciplinary or financial penalty, as long as their action is judged to have been reasonable against all known knowledge, facilities and advice available at the time.

"No job is that urgent, that it cannot be undertaken safely"

Nick Imlah
Managing Director Unitech Industries